Dev Appleyard, Artist

Words cannot do justice to the varied and exquisite display of talent by Dev Appleyard.

Take a stroll down the west hall of 1st floor and gaze in wonder. Wonder what this artist was thinking, wonder how long this piece took to complete, wonder when, wonder ...

We have asked Dev about two of his many pieces displayed (neither pictured).

First we asked about the artwork that has eyes and lips exchanged. Dev explains that he drew this picture from a lady's face. He realized similar size between the lips and eyes so he decided to switch them around. This is called Surrealism. Dev then purchased a high fashion magazine to study hair and style so that the artwork would look like a photograph instead of a character or cartoon. Dev comments that by making the painting look real visitors have to stop and think about what they see.

Next, the group of men picture idea came from a photograph taken at Dev's church on Easter Sunday 1926. He liked the shadows and overall look of the picture. Plus Dev has three family members in the picture; his uncle, his grandfather, and his father. When Sylvia saw the original picture she asked why he didn't paint the women in the photo as another piece of artwork. Dev replied, "I never like to do anything twice." An understatement from this grandly multitalented artist.

"How the West was Won"

part one

June and July are filled with western 'hoedown' at Stone Hearth Estates. In June, Part I, enjoy movies and trivia from old television favorites, Gun Smoke and Bonanza. Then see how well you do at our trivia questions. At the end of June enjoy our very own "Mountain Oyster" feed topped off with a frosty beer. We will be introducing Clay as an artistic and therapeutic activity, maybe you can mold your own saddle? Then try your hand, and luck, with our horseshoe contest in the back yard. If you aim wide please throw toward the side bank and not the windows! Back for the summer, Don is going to load up his stagecoach and hit the road checking out area fields and pasture.

"How the West was Won", part II, in July, will culminate with a "Business After Hours" barbecue. Stone Hearth will pull out all the stops with salon frosted beer and root beer mugs. Camp town ladies and gunslingers will entertain and serve you. Be careful not to find yourself locked up in the jail; although we will gladly accept bail money. Also, that evening plan to participate in our Memories in the Making Art Auction; proceeds going to the Alzheimer's Association for area support and training.

On the Road

Don is back roaming the highways and byways. Load up and have a great time checking out our area pastures and fields. Advance warning, Don is renown for not being able to pass by Dairy Queens!

Wellness Checks

Every 2nd & 3rd Monday we will be conducting our monthly Wellness Checks. They will be offered in the chapel on 2nd floor.

Checks will start at 3:00 PM and run until 4:00 PM. Your personal check will only take about 5 minutes. You will be receiving a courtesy call as a reminder. Thank

like the things we don't say

Mother's Day, Father's Day and Memorial Day are so closely celebrated; with most of us, staff included, missing one or both of our parents. Not until recently have the closeness in dates seemed ironic. The following story came from a book called "Have a little faith". It is about two men, both pastors, completely different from each other, yet alike. This story is told by one of the pastors, this is paraphrased:

You know, in our tradition, we ask forgiveness from everyone-even casual acquaintances. But with those we are closest-wives, children, parents-we too often let things linger.

The story. A man buried his wife. At the gravesite he stood, tear rolling down his face.

"I loved her," he whispered.

"I mean... I really loved her."

The man broke down.

"And... I almost told her once."

Nothing haunts...

Just a few great pictures from "Under the Big Top". It was a fun day doing clown make-up for staff and guests, not to mention popcorn, peanuts, caramel apples, games, music and dancing for all!
